

The Morning Fuss

LITTLE FLOCK©

Moses killed a Man!
摩西殺人了! Man!

It was morning! Outside the window, the chirping and twittering birds woke Alexander from his sleep, so he got up early and energetically scampered around the house happily. His mom also reminded him to get ready for school soon.

With some bread in his right hand and his backpack in his left, Alexander ran towards his school. Jade had not even begun to say good morning before Alexander disappeared from her vision like smoke.

A rush of wind suddenly swept into the quiet classroom! Alexander had arrived. He threw his backpack on the table as he chomped on his bread and then ran back and forth in the classroom with his arms waving about wildly. As he ran back and forth, he also hit many of his classmates' heads with his hands.

Alexander hit Ryan's head, so Ryan glared at him and shouted, "What are you doing!" Alexander ignored him and continued running back and forth, hitting his classmates' heads wherever he went. When he passed by Ryan again, he hit Ryan's head once more!

Ryan was furious! He chased after Alexander and all the desks and chairs were overturned and all over the place. The rest of the classmates fled out of the classroom in fear, leaving Ryan and Alexander behind as they ran around everywhere.

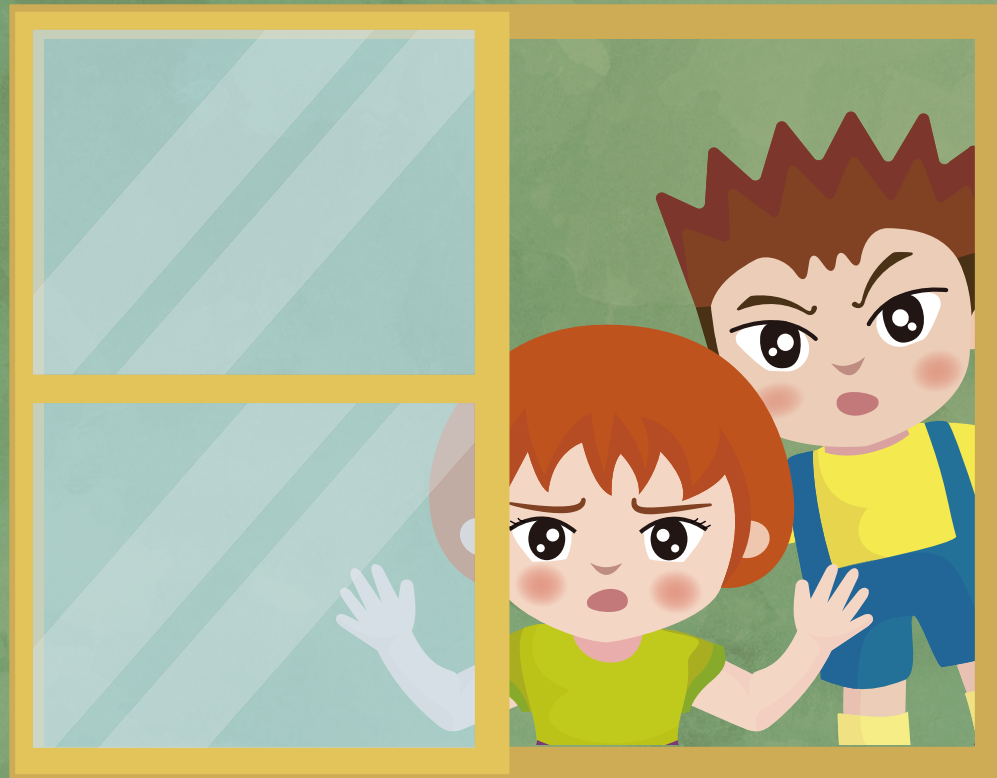

Suddenly, a trembling voice cried out, “The teacher said that the kids who arrive early have to quietly read their books in the classroom!” At this moment, Alexander and Ryan stopped and quickly looked around to see who had spoken.

It turns out that it was Lulu. She had not run out in time, so she had hidden behind the bookshelf. Then she said bravely, “My mom once said, ‘Because Moses was too rash, he killed an Egyptian! Later, God used forty years to train him.’ That’s why you guys shouldn’t run anymore. Hurry up and arrange the desks and chairs neatly!”

At this moment, the classmates also began yelling from outside the windows. “That’s right! That’s right! The teacher said that we have to quietly read in the classroom. Look! You two messed up the entire classroom!”

Alexander and Ryan looked at the classroom. It was a complete mess of tables and chairs! Alexander realized that he had played too enthusiastically today, so he hastily apologized to the other classmates. “I’m sorry! I messed up the classroom. I...I...I’ll hurry up and arrange the tables and chairs neatly.” As he apologized, he began to set up the desks and chairs properly.

The other children walked into the classroom one by one, and Jade said, “Everybody help!” With everybody’s help, the classroom soon returned to its original appearance!
